

HISTORY MINOR REQUIREMENTS AS OF SPRING 2018

To complete the requirements of the History minor, students must complete 18 credits, 12 of which must be earned in Rutgers University’s 300-400 level courses. Grades lower than C do not count toward fulfillment of the History minor requirement.

Undergraduate History courses at Rutgers-Camden are designated by two sets of numbers, for instance, 510:365.

The first number—which is 509, 510, 512, or 516—indicates the theme or geographical area covered by the course. The 509 prefix refers to courses in “Historical Methods or Research,” the 510 prefix refers to courses in European history, the 512 prefix refers to courses in US history, and the 516 prefix refers to courses covering the rest of the world.

The second number indicates the difficulty level of the course. There are four levels: 100-level, 200-level, 300-level, and 400-level, with 100-level being the least demanding and 400-level being the most demanding.

Additional Policies

Taking effect Fall 2018: No more than 6 credits will be accepted for the minor from online courses. This policy will NOT apply to students who declared the History minor before Fall 2018
